Forest Sustainability Fellowships

The Bren School of Environmental Science & Management at the University of California, Santa Barbara invites applications to the Forest Sustainability Fellowship (FSF) Program. This program focuses on scientific understanding and policy tools required to manage forests for long-term biological, physical, and social sustainability. Through training, research, and communication, the FSF program prepares a new generation of high-impact leaders in forest science and management. For details, see http://bren.ucsb.edu/admissions/financial_index.html#Fellowships.

Forest Sustainability Fellows must be accepted to, and enroll in, a graduate program at the Bren School. For information about the Bren Schools graduate programs, including admissions deadlines, eligibility and prerequisite requirements, and required application exams and materials, please visit our Admissions page at http://www.bren.ucsb.edu/admissions/prospect_overview.htm. The application deadline for the Masters program is Jan. 6.
